

Aegis Living Among 15 Companies Recognized by Glassdoor for Excellent Work-Life Balance

Consistently Scored 4.0 or Higher for Past Year by Employees

BELLEVUE, Wash. – Aug. 2, 2017 – Aegis Living, a national leader in assisted living and memory care, is featured as one of 15 companies recognized by Glassdoor for excellent work-life balance. Companies recognized received consistent high scores from employees over the past year across multiple measures. This comes on the heels of Aegis Living being among Glassdoor’s Top 50 Best Places to Work for 2017.

“At Aegis Living, we are committed to making lives better – not only for our residents, but for our employees and families as well,” said Judy Meleliat, president of Aegis Living. “We continually strive to improve overall employee well-being and satisfaction.”

Aegis Living operates assisted living communities in Washington, California and Nevada and has plans to develop ten new properties over the next several years. Hiring plans are also on the rise with 800 new jobs being created in the next four years and 300 in just the next 12 months.

“Hiring the right people to serve in our communities is a priority at Aegis Living and we’re proud to offer competitive benefits and compensation along with a culture that attracts the best and brightest,” said Rick Karnofski, senior vice president of human resources at Aegis Living. “Our culture encourages a work-life balance by providing a meaningful career that our employees are passionate about along with flexible schedules, unique appreciation programs and paid time off.”

Glassdoor Work-Life Balance Methodology

To make the Glassdoor list of companies that have excellent work-life balance, companies must have at least 30 work-life balance ratings above a 4.0, according to full and part-time employees over the past year (7/17/16 – 7/18/17). Company ratings on Glassdoor based on a 5.0 scale: 1.0=very dissatisfied, 3.0=OK, 5.0=very satisfied.
